

I encourage you to find ways to force cable and Satellite companies to provide channels a la carte a fair price. I am hesitant to subscribe because many of the packages available have channels and content that I do not want to support. Each channel should be priced and separately sold. These companies should not be able to deeply discount packages as that would more than likely make it unfavorable to purchase just 15 channels instead of the 60 channel packages. Why is it that the costs of all other technologies has gone down over the years (computers, internet access, cell phones, etc) yet cable just keeps going up?
